LAFAYETTE COLLEGE. THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON-CLASS-DAY EXER

CISES. FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE. Easton, Penn., June 29.-Yesterday the exercises of the 39th Commencement of Lafayette College began. A larger number of visitors than usual have already arrived, and even thus early in the week the town presents an unusually gay appearance. The new college chapel, completed a little over a year ago, was completely filled yesterday morning with an audience assembled to hear the Baccalaureate sermon of President Cattell. After all were scated the graduating class, 33 in number, came in the chapel and occupied scats in front. The Rev. Dr. Coleman, Professor of Latin in the college, assisted in the preliminary devotional exercises, after which President Cattell began his sermon, taking as his text Jeremiah 111., 4: "Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, My Pather, thou art the guide of my youth." At the conclusion of the discourse, the members of the class arose and remained standing while the Pre-ident addressed to them some parting words. He alluded to the fact that during the period of the connection of the class with the college, nearly all the great improvements which had placed Lafayette in the rank which it now holds among also spoke of the revivals that in the same time had marked the history of the college. The class then joined in singing "Nearer My God to Thee," after which an invocation from Dr. Catteil closed

At 4 p. m. a religious conference was also held in the chapel with "Pulfilling the Law of Christ" as the theme. President Cattell, Professor Selden J. Coffin, the Rev. John Burrowes, class of '57; Jas. A. McKnight, class of '71, and others addressed the meeting. The sermon be-fore the Brainerd Evangelical Society, by Rev. Frank L.

Robbins of Philadelphia, closed the exercises of yesterday. The service was held in the old First Presbyterian church of the town, which was crowded in spite of the extreme warmth of the weather. The discourse was a presentation of the thought that the life of the Bible is

To-day is Class day, and everything has been in the hands of the graduating class. Early this morning they were busy superintending the erection of platform and seats under the trees on the lawn that stretches down in front of East College, and overlooks Eeston. The weather was all that could be desired, and the seniors were undisturbed by lowering skies or threatening gasts. Two o'clock was the hour appointed for the be-gluning of the exercises, and soon after dinner the vis-itors began to ascend the winding walk which connects town with college. The way up is toilsome, but the view is lovely from the summit of the hill. The path

"Clase Day" is quite popular with the ladies of Easton, and this afternoon they were present in full numbers. Glimore's orchestra of 35 pieces furnished the music. J. W. B. Bansman of Lancaster, Penn., the Master of Ceremonies, introduced the exercises by some appropriate words of welcome, and then Mr. J. B. Heller, ir., of Easton delivered an oration on "Novel Rending." Charles J. Nourse of Washington, D. C., read a poem on a subject familiar enough to such occasions, "College Days." This was followed by the presentation speech, in which Arthur G. Dewalt of Kutztown, Penn., presented appropriate articles to members of the class, who came upon the platform one by one to receive them. The presents were generally grotesque in their character, and the folibies of the persons to whom they were given were touched off pleasantly.

The Tree Oration was given by Francis G. Fisher of Standing Stone, Penn., on "Intelligence—the Tree of Life of the Nation." The Class History followed by Mr. Pennell C. Evans of Easton. The history proved to be succipic poem, in which the events that had marked the stay of the class in College was renewed. The Prophecy came next by S. L. Stiver of Potter's Mills, Penn. The Valedictory Oration was delivered by John R. Williams of Frenchtown, New-Jersey, The class then gathered upon the platform, and sang the class-song composed for the coachies, and the concert under the auspices of the graduating class in the Opera House.

The Brooklyn Aldermanic Committee, appointed to consider the propriety of the city subscribing the amount necessary for the continuance of work on the East River Bridge, met yesterday afternoon. The particular question was the acceptance of the amenda tory act passed by the last Legislature. It provides that the Mayor and Controller of New-York shall appoint eight Directors, and the Mayor and Controller of Brooklyn shall appoint the same number, and the persons so appointed, with the officials, shall constitute the Directory. The private stockholders are to be retired. The bridge is declared to be a public highway. The act provides also that in addition to the amounts already subscribed by them the two cities are respectively author ized to issue bonds at 7 per cent interest per annum. New-York is to pay to the Company $500,000 in 1874 and the same sum in 1875, and Brooklyn $1,000,000 in each of those years. The two sities are to hold the stock in the Company "in addition to such, as they may otherwise hold equal to the amount so paid by them, for which purpose the capital stock of the Company shall, by virtue of such payment be increased to the amount thereof from time to time as the same shall be paid." At the meeting yesterday there were present Aldermen Platt, Richardson, Ropes, Rowley, and Howell, of the Committee, Mayor Hunter, Controller Schroeder, Gen-Cue, William C. Kingsley, Seymour I

Witt, Park Commissioner Stranahan, and others. The proceedings were opened by ex-Senator Murphy, who gave a review of the original charter, and the progress and estimates of the oridge enterprise. The cost, he said, was fixed originally at $5,000,000, but it was found necessary to increase that amount. The directors were empowered to complete the work and borrow the money necessary to do this. Brooklyn subscribed $7,000,000, and New-York $1.500,000. One-tenth of the whole sum was subscribed by the private stockholders. whole sum was subscribed by the private stockholders. Thus far, $4.260,000 has been expended, beloat the whole amount paid in. The amended charter gives full control to the two cities, and retires the stockholders. The great question for the Committee to decide is whether work on the bridge shall be continued or not. Engineer Roebling's revised estimates places the total cost of the bridge at $43,000,000 to be provided. The change of original plans has compelled increased expenditure. The roadway has been widened from $6,000,000 to be provided. The change of original plans has compelled increased expenditure. The roadway has been widened from $6,000,000 for the structure will be five feet higher than was first calculated. The New-York caisson as $6 feet below the surface of the water, and the removal of bowiders on the Brocklyn shore entailed an outlay of $20,000. For the purchase of land, $750,000 has thus far been expended. Mr. Murohy concluded by stating that New-York was as greatly interested in the bridge as Brooklyn, and he utred the Committee to pieder the City of Brooklyn to pay $2,000,000 to carry on the work. In reply to a question by Alderman Ropes, ex-Senator Murphy said that he thought if the New-York Common Council should accept the provisions of the act, the city would be compelled jo; issue the bonds. He understood that Controller Green and Mr. Vance favored the work.

Alderman Richardson asked whether, if New-York should decline to subscribe, Brooklyn would not have to pay all the cost. Mr. Kingsley said that, he had received assurances that New-York would subscribe before Brooklyn was pledged. Mayor Hunter objected to having the burden of the mailer borne by the city.

Further remarks were made by several members, in the course of which Mr. Kingsley said that, he had received having the burden of the finaler borne by the city.

The Board of Police Justices met in the Tombs yesterday to consider what measures might be taken to fulfill a request recently made by Controller Green that they would reduce the expenses of carrying on their Courts. As a primary measure toward fulfilling this request the Board removed from office Mr. Fitch, the Record Clerk of the Court of Special Sessions, who had a salary of about $4.000, and decided not to elect any one to the vacant office. The work hitherto done by this officer will in future be done by the Clerks of each Police Court. The services of the interpreter of the Fitth District Police Court, in Morrisania, were also dispensed with. It was decided not to make any transfers of the Justices from one Court to another until Oct. 1, several of the Justices having already made arrangements with others in order to obtain vacations.
